NYU professor sorry about fat-shaming tweet

A visiting professor at NYU has been forced to apologize for a tweet advising obese Ph.D. applicants that they don't have what it takes to make it in evolutionary psychology.

"Dear obese PhD applicants: if you didn't have the willpower to stop eating carbs, you won't have the willpower to do a dissertation," Geoffrey Miller wrote.

The online reaction was swift.

A chorus of Twitter users called the University of New Mexico associate professor a bigot while a psychologist in Wales sent a letter to the head of the UNM psychology department expressing his outrage.

Miller deleted the tweet and apologized.

Fake violence on city's mean streets

Echoing real life.

A photographer stages violent scenes on Brooklyn streets.

Here's one of the photos from Steven Brahms' "Violent Material" series that was shot in Brooklyn. / STEVEN BRAHMS

Exploring violence

The "Violent Material" series explores the issue of violence.

- The photos from the series recall images from action movies and film posters.
- Photographer Steven Brahms shot all of the photos in Williamsburg and Greenpoint.
- Brahms said that even with a police officer with them, they drew lots of attention.

and casting websites; he picked the applicants who he thought echoed the iconic imagery of "the guy with the gun."

Even with the talent, Brahms said, the shoot was "a little sketchy, because they're holding guns in Brooklyn."

"Some felt tough doing it, and then others felt somewhat scared doing it, because you don't normally see a guy on the street at two o'clock in the afternoon holding a gun," Brahms explained.

But the process of taking the photos aligned with his feelings about the desensitizing effect of this kind of imagery of men with guns.

"That was what was so weird," he said. "As soon as you take the picture, instantly [that tension] kind of deteriorates, and it's not that interesting because you've seen it before and you're seeing it again."

In fact, the images appearing in Tuesday's Metro will be yet another instance of that, Brahms noted: "It's part of the project now," he said. "It's very cool."

Pathway. Schumer expects immigration bill to pass by July 4

Sen. Chuck Schumer anticipates the bipartisan Gang of Eight immigration bill will pass by July 4, The Associated Press reported.

Schumer reportedly said he believes as many as 70 of the 100 senators will vote for the measure when it goes for a full senate vote on June 10.

market for pastries

Business. The new sweet treat has taken the city's taste buds and wallets by storm.

A little pastry with a funny name is causing an out-sized frenzy on the island of Manhattan, where renowned chef Dominique Ansel is selling only 250 "cronuts" — half croissant, half donut — each day out of his SoHo bakery. The cronuts, which debuted on May 10, became a sensation almost overnight, quickly becoming the latest must-have delicacy for the city's elite.

But the only way to get a cronut is to wait in line in the morning, and as salivating customers began queueing at the crack of dawn — attempting to slip baristas hundred-dollar bills to expedite their order, and crying or flipping off the staff when the treats sold out. The prospect of waiting their turn lost its appeal for those who could afford to pay a premium for the five-dollar treat.

Being New York City, it was only a matter of time before a black market in cronuts popped up on Craigslist, as enterprising hustlers with a little time on their hands began offering to wait in line for cronuts (there's a limit of six per order) and to deliver them to people around the city at sky-high markups. The black market cronut dealers sell the creations for prices ranging from about $15 per cronut in Manhattan to a whopping $40 if you live in Brooklyn.

As the sweet treat fury continues, Ansel has already trademarked the name "cronut." Despite the success of his creation, the chef is reportedly refusing to raise the price of the treats or to "sell out" by turning his bakery into a cronut-only operation.

Nassau County District Attorney Kathleen Rice unveils the details of "Operation Flush the Johns." / NASSAU COUNTY DA'S OFFICE

'Operation Flush the Johns' nabs 104 male suspects

Prostitution. The month-long sting in Nassau County arrested 104 men for soliciting sex.

who pay for sex.

In a statement, Rice said that sex workers "too often remain the prime targets in prostitution investigations, while the johns who fuel the exploitation are treated as mere witnesses."

The encounters were arranged through the website backpage.com, and then captured on hidden cameras in hotel rooms, Rice's office said.

When the men arrived at the hotel room, they would be met by an undercover officer posing as a prostitute. As soon as money was offered, the men would be arrested and charged.

All 104 men pleaded not guilty. The maximum sentence each would face is one year in jail.

Cycling. Self-service bike shop kiosks arrive in Brooklyn

Bikes seem to be on everyone's radar these days, and one start-up is looking to coast along on the riding trend.

Express Biker has debuted 24-hour vending machines that sell bike parts in two Brooklyn locations. Down-on-their-luck cyclists who pop a tire at night can visit the Emporium Gas Station across from the Brooklyn Navy Yard, or the 24-hour Mobil Gas Station near Prospect Park. Parts can be purchased with the swipe of a card.

The kiosks are the brainchild of Shimon Kivman.

Express Biker also sells lights, CO2 cartridges, tubes and other accessories.

Teen shot as she saves a toddler from gun battle

Shoot-out.

Witnesses say that the teen risked her life to save a toddler in a stroller.

A 15-year-old Bronx girl was shot in the leg Saturday night as she placed her life in danger to run and save a toddler's life, The Daily News reports.

Sarah Riviera was standing outside her apartment building on Kelly Street near Westchester Avenue about 10:30 p.m. when she heard multiple gunshots in the area. As several people ran for cover, Riviera spotted a toddler who was in a stroller and rushed to help push the tot to safety.

Raheem Simon / NYPD

"Everybody started running, so I went to grab the carriage," Riviera told the News. "As I pushed it, the bullet hit me."

The teen was then shot in the leg and was transported to Lincoln Hospital in stable condition, police said.

Witnesses said that the baby's father tied his shirt around Riviera's leg until help finally arrived. Doctors say that they expect Riviera to make a full recovery.

Meanwhile, cops are now searching for 23-year-old Raheem Simon, whom they say may be responsible for firing the gun. Simon is described as a black male, 5-foot-8 and weighing 185 lbs.

Anyone with information about this incident is asked to call the NYPD's Crime Stoppers hotline at 800-577-TIPS.

The public can also submit their tips by logging onto the Crime Stoppers website or texting their tips to 274637(CRIMES), then entering TIP577.

Afghanistan

Flags at half-staff for Fort Drum soldier

New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo has ordered that flags at all state government buildings be flown at half-staff tomorrow, in honor of Pfc. Mariano M. Raymundo, a Fort Drum soldier who died in Sharan, Afghanistan, on Saturday.

The circumstances of Raymundo's death are still under investigation at this time, and no more details have been released, according to the governor's office.

Cuomo has directed that all flags on state buildings must be lowered whenever service members from or stationed in New York state are killed in action or die in a combat zone.

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Justices. Police can take DNA upon arrest

In a major victory for law enforcement agencies, a divided Supreme Court yesterday ruled that police can take a DNA sample from someone who has been arrested and charged but not convicted of a serious crime.

On a 5-4 vote, the court reversed a decision last April by Maryland's highest court that overturned the 2010 conviction and life sentence of Alonzo Jay King for a rape committed seven years earlier.

In an opinion written by Justice Anthony Kennedy, the court handed a victory to the state of Maryland by saying that taking DNA samples from arrestees was similar to taking fingerprints. Of the 50 states, 29 have such laws along with the federal government.

DNA samples can be taken if police have probable cause to detain a suspect facing charges relating to a serious offense, Kennedy said. REUTERS

Five-term New Jersey Senator Frank Lautenberg dies at 89

Lautenberg was born in Paterson, N.J., to poor Polish and Russian Jewish immigrants. / GETTY IMAGES

Democrat. He was the Senate's last surviving World War II veteran.

Frank Lautenberg, a self-made multimillionaire businessman who became a leading liberal in the Senate and championed smoking bans, gun control, airline safety and rail transportation, died yesterday at 89, an aide said.

Lautenberg's office said in February 2010 that he had been diagnosed with cancer and would have chemotherapy. That June, he said he had recovered completely.

A co-founder, former chairman and chief executive of the payroll services company Automatic Data Processing, he was elected as a Democrat by New Jersey voters to five six-year terms in the Senate.

He was first elected in 1982, running after incumbent Democrat Harrison Williams quit in a bribery scandal.

Lautenberg retired from the Senate in 2000, saying he was tired of chasing campaign contributions. But in 2002, he came out of political retirement at age 78, filling the seat of Robert Torricelli, who dropped his re-election bid amid corruption charges involving improper gifts from a businessman.

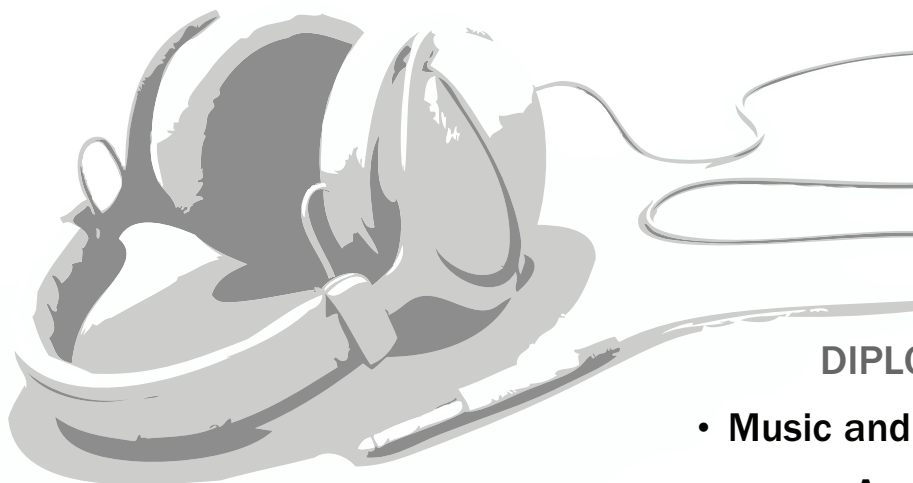

Lautenberg was re-elected in 2008 at age 84. REUTERS

Boston fire chief resigns over bombing response

Public safety. The criticism of Abaira stands in contrast to praise offered to Police Commissioner Ed Davis.

Boston Fire Chief Steve Abaira resigned yesterday, citing public criticism from his deputies over his response to the deadly Boston Marathon bombings.

Abaira's deputies complained in a letter to the mayor that their chief had failed to assume command when he reached the scene at the race's finish line on April 15, where pressure-cooker bombs had exploded in a crowd of thousands. Three people were killed and 264 others injured.

China. Fire kills 119 people inside locked slaughterhouse

A blaze at a locked poultry slaughterhouse in north-east China killed at least 119 people yesterday, with several still unaccounted for, officials and state media said. The tragedy triggered online outrage in a country with a grim record on fire safety.

The fire broke out just after dawn near Dehui in Jilin province. The provincial government said it sent more than 500 firefighters and more than 270 doctors and nurses to the scene, evacuating 3,000 nearby residents as a precaution.

China Central Television showed thick black smoke pouring from a low-slung, one-story building with an arched roof over part of it.

Flames shot through some rooftop vents, and firefighters on the ground and on high ladders poured water onto the roof and onto smoldering debris inside the building.

Michael Adebolajo, who was shot by police at the scene of the killing of Drummer Lee Rigby, appeared at Westminster Magistrates' Court.

Flanked by three guards behind glass panels in the dock, Adebolajo asked to be identified by a different name, Mujahid Abu Hamza. His defense lawyer David Gottlieb and deputy chief magistrate Emma Arbuthnot referred to him as Abu Hamza during the hearing.

Adebolajo repeatedly interrupted proceedings, asking why he had to stand up and questioning the charges after they were read to him.

"May I respond, may I respond," he asked several times during the five-minute hearing. He did not enter a plea, and the magistrate said a further hearing will take place at the Central Criminal Court, known as the Old Bailey, on June 28. REUTERS

Tax inspectors oblivious to Holocaust

Many low-level tax inspectors in Germany's Nazi-era finance ministry were oblivious to the Holocaust and dutifully tried to contact murdered Jews whose wealth was being plundered by the ministry's top officials, according to a new book.

Germans have publicly atoned for Nazi crimes in a myriad of ways over six decades, providing billions of dollars in reparations to Holocaust victims, their descendants and the state of Israel. But only recently have leading government ministries come clean on their own particular Nazi past.

The finance ministry's role in assisting the Nazis was long assumed as a fact, but never examined in real detail until Berlin historian Christine Kuller's book "Bureaucracy and Crime," which it commissioned. REUTERS

US comes to Syrian peace effort 'late,' Kerry says

Death toll. At least 80,000 people have lost their lives in the two-year uprising against Syrian President Bashar al-Assad.

The United States came "late" to an effort to end the Syrian civil war and is trying to prevent the total collapse of the country, Secretary of State John Kerry said yesterday.

"This is a very difficult process, which we come to late," Kerry said at a news conference, speaking of a U.S.-Russian effort to bring the warring parties to a peace conference in Geneva that might lead to a transitional government.

"We are trying to prevent the sectarian violence from dragging Syria down into a complete and total implosion where it has broken up into enclaves and the institutions of the state have been destroyed, with God knows how many additional refugees and how many innocent people killed," he added.

Humanitarian groups say as many as 1,500 wounded people may be trapped in the besieged town Qusair by fighting between rebels and Assad's forces, who are backed by fighters from Lebanon's militant Shi'ite group, Hezbollah.

The peace conference that Kerry hopes to convene aims to implement an agreement hammered out 11 months ago, also in Geneva, that called for an end to the violence and the formation of a transitional government by "mutual consent."

Kerry to decide when to push for peace decisions

Secretary of State John Kerry said yesterday he will decide at some point whether to return to Israel and the Palestinian territories to push for decisions by the sides on reviving stalled peace talks to end their decades-old conflict.

"I will make a judgment at some point whether I need to go and push a little bit, or help that process," Kerry told reporters at a news conference.

US says actions of WikiLeaks soldier show 'arrogance'

Military prosecutors said arrogance drove the soldier who went on trial yesterday, accused of orchestrating the biggest leak of classified information in U.S. history through the WikiLeaks anti-secrecy website three years ago.

But at the opening of the court-martial of intelligence analyst Bradley Manning, 25, his defense lawyer portrayed him as a naive young soldier who had leaked the documents, combat videos and other data because he wanted to reveal the human costs of the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq.

Private First Class Manning faces a possible life sentence without parole if convicted.

Take a trip to England in 'The Chalice'

Nancy Bilyeau just signed on to write the third book in this series.
JOSHUA KESSLER

Historical fiction.
Headstrong nun
meets famous king.

This sequel to "The Crown," Nancy Bilyeau's debut novel, brings back Joanna Stafford, a headstrong nun faced with a dramatic fate at a young age: to fulfill an unclear prophecy. And Stafford is here to stay — Bilyeau signed on to write a third book last month, making this series a trilogy.

"The Chalice" follows her as she leaves her oasis of Dartford, a small town hours from a major city, to travel to London and abroad in search of answers. Stafford seeks not only to unlock the prophecy, but also whether she should fulfill it at all.

Major characters of the era appear, including, of course, King Henry VIII, Anne of Cleves and the Tower of London, all told through the lens of a woman who only ever wanted a quiet life as a nun.

How do you write? How do you transplant yourself into this time?

I'd take my laptop and go to the Cloisters museum, and I would try to write in there because they have re-created 14th- and 15th-century French monastic rooms, and Dartford Priory was built in that period. So as long as my battery would

Character

An imperfect heroine

What do you love about Joanna that you wanted to see her through another adventure?

I was very determined to write a woman who was different from most standard historical characters. I wanted her to be independent and intelligent, but not perfect. She has a bit of a temper; she's a bit impulsive. I've had people say that they love her, but they want to go into the book and shake her. I wanted to create someone who was flawed, but who had an urge to always try and do the right thing.

hold up and the guards wouldn't chase me out, I would sit in various corners and write.

You traveled to England for research. What was that like?

They demolished the priory just like in the book. There is still a gatehouse from that period. I walked the perimeter, and it was very emotional to feel that all these women had been there and lived these lives, and that maybe I would help that they would not be forgotten.

With so many books written on this era, did you feel like you needed a really unique idea?

I wanted to do a thriller. That was important to me. I thought I wanted to do that more than anything else, and then I decided what period to set it in.

Aaron Dessner is on drugs. The National's guitarist had to push back this interview twice because he was visiting the doctor for a stiff neck, an occupational hazard. "I think it might have been from that six-hour 'Sorrow' thing," he says, before adding, "We played the same song for six hours and my back was super tight from that and it never really relaxed." Dessner, who writes most of the band's music with his brother Bryce, apologizes if he seems a little loopy from painkillers — but he seems to be making a lot of sense, discussing the band's brilliant new album "Trouble Will Find Me."

Let's talk about the new album. For you and your brother, this is your first credit as producers.

How was the process different?

In the past we've had a lot of engineering help from people, and we also did with this record, but essentially Bryce and I sit around the studio and mess with things all the time and record all of it ourselves and do a lot of the arranging. But the way we made this record is not actually different from the way that we made any of the other ones. Whether it says "Produced by The National" or whatever, we work together as a band, but oftentimes Bryce and

I write the music and we're just sitting around for hours upon hours just messing with sound.

There's a lot of dual voices going on with this album.

We've always used other voices as kind of a silver lining. The juxtaposition of other voices with Matt's voice makes Matt's voice richer, in a weird way, and more beautiful. So we're still doing that in this case, and there were a few places where we wanted female voices, kind of as characters, and as color. So with Sharon [Van Etten] and Nona [Marie Invie] and Annie [Clarke], we're fortunate enough to have all of these friends who have amazing voices, and also Richie [Reed Parry], who's on it, from Arcade Fire. And we all sing also. I think it's just an evolution of trying to do that more.

The defining statement of the album seems to be "everything that I love is on the table" from the song, "Don't Swallow the Cap." Do you think that's true?

I think that's a good point. It's like he's laying it all out there. And I think in a way, lyrically, this record is the most verbose, and the most direct and personal, in places. And in a weird way it pretty much encapsulates everything we've ever done. So, yeah, I think that's fair to say that's a defining line.

A neutral take on the Irish Troubles

IRA drama. The "Man on Wire" director takes on a hot-button topic from the past.

In the IRA saga "Shadow Dancer," rising English star Andrea Riseborough ("Oblivion") delivers what might as well be termed "The Heath Ledger Performance." Like his performance in "Brokeback Mountain," hers is completely internalized, free of emotion. It's not that she feels nothing or has no inner life, but rather that all feelings are locked inside the body. The audience is reduced to scanning her stony exterior for signs of life, fruitlessly and fascinatingly.

There's a reason for her opacity: Her character, Colette, has been traumatized into working for the IRA. An opening set in 1973 finds her little brother accidentally killed during an attack. This hardens her enough that, 20 years later, she plants a bomb in a subway station. Colette's plan is thwarted and she's carted off by authorities, at which point Mac (Clive Owen), an intense but rugged MI5 officer, finds her weak spot: she has a young son. She finds herself in an impossible situation, having to choose between losing her son and ratting out her connected family.

Like most films on the Irish Troubles, "Shadow Dancer" takes a neutral stance. But it doesn't hold back on depicting the brutishness on both sides. Both the IRA and the MI5 act like mafia thugs; if they're not torturing people physically, they're doing it psychologically. Director James Marsh, a part-time documentarian who made "Man on Wire" and "Project Nim," offers a cool, detached tone that's nonetheless sick with claustrophobic dread. For most of the length there doesn't appear to be any way out for Colette, nor anyone else.

"Shadow Dancer" lets the impossibility of the situation sit there for most of its length, before a more or less sudden shock twist. It's a thinking person's thriller, but it could stand to be if not more taut, then at least more probing. Riseborough is effortlessly fantastic, and she has a vulnerable, pouty look that clashes nicely with how little vulnerability she tries to convey. But the film spends a lot of its length stalled, and can't help but trade in stock situations. The evolution of Colette and Mac's relationship — is it interrogation... or is it love? — breaks up the slight monotony, but it's an element from a less smart picture.

Ellen Page is 'strictly freegan'

At 20, Ellen Page became a star playing Juno in the film of the same name. She was nominated for an Academy Award and went on to star in movies such as "Whip It" and "Inception." But first, she took some time off. "I studied permaculture, design and eco-village development at a place called Lost Valley in Oregon with a lot of people who had the same philosophy — strictly freegan," she says.

Freeganism, or the practice of salvaging discarded food, was just one of the things that fascinated Page during her month-long stay at the settlement. The experience taught her to live simply and to really think about her relationship with the planet. It also prepared her for "The East," a new eco-thriller co-starring Alexander Skarsgard and co-writer Brit Marling.

Page, on the questions raised by her stay in an eco-village in Oregon

"On top of it being a beautifully written piece of work, there were so many ideas that I was excited about and thinking about," she says.

In the film she plays Izzy, a member of a shadowy group of activists called "The East." It's like a more hands-on version of Anonymous, but they live by an anarchist eco-code. While Page's time at the settlement didn't involve targeting corporate leaders, it did serve as a solid foundation for her character.

"We were able to talk about the experience I had and relate what that does to you as a person when you've been raised by the system that exists," she explains. "Then you go experience something that completely flips everything on its head. That is a wild ride to go on. Then to walk back out into society, you see things differently."

It's a way of life she thinks about daily.

"Every morning when I wake up I am unwillingly oppressing a lot of people and the environment to

Q&A

Growing pains

You were a teen during the Irish Troubles. What were your experiences?

That and the first Iraq War were the two main fears I had as a child — that my dad could be conscripted, or a bomb could go off on the tube.

ANDREA RISEBOROUGH

"Shadow Dancer" star remembers living through the IRA conflict.

RIISING ABOVE THE TROUBLES

Andrea Riseborough is poised to become the latest major British export. Though most Americans will recognize her as Tom Cruise's partner/lover in "Oblivion," the English actress has had many high-profile homeland roles for big directors: She was one of Sally Hawkins' friends in Mike Leigh's "Happy-Go-Lucky," the gullible girlfriend in "Brighton Rock" and Wallis Simpson in Madonna's "W.E." In "Shadow Dancer," in theaters now, she plays a Northern Ireland woman in 1993 working for the IRA and forced by an MI5 officer (Clive Owen) to turn snitch on her connected family.

What were some things you discovered about people living it directly as you prepped for the film?

They were born into it. This didn't begin in 1922, of course. It goes back to the 1000s. The island's been in so much turmoil for such a long time. But they got through it. How they got through it, I discovered, was all the women were on pills and all the men were drinking vodka. It was a situation in which you'd say goodbye to your kids on their way to school in the morning, and you had no idea whether they were going to return at the end of the day. And I'm really not sure how people get through that, other than just living it.

There aren't many films on the Troubles that focus on women.

Our industry seems to have grossly misrepresented female involvement in the Troubles. There were so many strong women — and weak women — involved in the struggle. Of course, it's a no-brainer. Who are you going to put on the tube with a bomb? Are you going to put someone who looks horribly conspicuous in a black leather jacket, a skinhead, a big guy? Or are you going to use someone easy to overlook?

Your character doesn't speak much. What are the difficulties in conveying her inner turmoil through silence? She didn't start out that way. She spoke more. Silence is her strength, truly. And at that time of paranoia, deep paranoia, when you couldn't trust family members, let alone friends, it just seemed very authentic to us to have her not talk much. We had a responsibility to be authentic, because there were so many people hurt and affected by this conflict.

Summer travel. The ski-friendly state also has a lot going on in the summer.

Colorado evokes images of snow-capped peaks and knee-deep powder, but when the snow melts and the chairlifts shut down, the Rocky Mountain State offers just as much adventure and excitement — without all the crowds.

Hear the mountain music

When the weather heats up, Colorado combines two of its greatest features: music and nature. Arguably the most beautiful music venue on earth, Red Rocks Amphitheatre hosts some of the world's greatest talent on a stage sandwiched between two 300-foot sandstone monoliths to create unmatched natural acoustics. Artists also head to Mishawaka Amphitheatre to play in an intimate setting on the Poudre Canyon in Bellvue, just west of Fort Collins. For the last four decades,

Imagine Dragons played at Red Rocks Amphitheatre last month. / GETTY IMAGES

Reasons to head to Colorado this summer

music lovers have been jamming in the San Juan Mountains at the famous Telluride Bluegrass Festival. The 40th anniversary will take place June 20-23.

Hit the national parks

Few states have more diverse landscapes than Colorado. From forested mountains to otherworldly mesas, the Rocky Mountain State has it all. Whether hiking past the mirror lakes in Rocky Mountain National Park, running down the rolling dunes of Great Sand Dune National Park or gawking at the perplexing cliff dwellings of the Pueblo people at Mesa Verde National Park, Colorado's nature is awe-inspiring.

Enter a biking mecca

The disappearance of snow means fat-tire bikers can finally pedal way off the beaten path. Colorado is a mountain biking mecca, and the 500 miles of trails in Crested Butte — home of the Mountain Biking Hall of Fame — offer some of the best terrain in the country. Adventurers can revel in the stunning vistas along the 500-mile Colorado Trail, which winds from Durango to Denver.

Celebrate at endless festivals

Festival season comes into full swing as the days get longer, and Colorado offers something for everyone. And there's more than just music to celebrate here; the state that fueled the U.S. craft-brewing boom has a wealth of beer festivals throughout summer, the biggest of which is Denver's Epic Beer Festival on June 28 and 29, which features more than 120 craft breweries. Fibark, the U.S.' longest-running white-water festival, epitomizes Colorado's extreme side with a series of river races June 12-16. The Greeley Stampede lets visitors get in touch with their inner cowboy or cowgirl from June 27-July 7.

No wonder they gave this city a TV show

Hit the road.

Nashville —
Music City, USA — has a lot more to offer than rockin'
good tunes.

Nashville is no longer just about country music. Home to indie acts such as the Black Keys, this vibrant Southern city is a playground for music and art lovers, savvy style mavens and food fanatics — and all of them can find plenty to do and see.

Eat and drink

How to avoid summer sports stress

Some children might be better suited to sports like swimming. / THINKSTOCK

Sports. Find the right team for your child.

With deadlines approaching for summer — and
even fall — sports teams, now is the time to find the right environment for your children.

But identifying the right
one out of a slew of options can be stressful, and experts suggest taking the time to find the right fit.

Luis Fernando Llosa,
a co-author of “Beyond
Winning: Smart Parenting
in a Toxic Sports Environment,” recommends waiting until kids are 11 or 12 to sign them up — something he acknowledges is unusual.

This allows children time for developmental stages, he said, “rather than having a coach barking at them all the time and telling them what to do.”

Those barking coaches

Tips

Llosa gave Metro the following tips to foster a positive sports experience for children:

- Play one sport per season
- Play different sports during different seasons

- Choose one activity per year that includes development and balance
- Study the history of a sport kids play
- Arrange for your athlete
to help coach a younger team

are another thing to avoid,
he advises.

“Find out whether the coach is ego-driven or not,” Llosa said. “They’re doing this more for themselves than for the kids that they coach, and they have very little training in child development.”

Aaron Finkel had so much trouble deciding
among the “dizzying”
number of sports options and deadlines that he launched a website last month, New York Sports Connection, to organize teams.

“There are so many different options for parents,”
he said, which can become overwhelming.

Many moms and dads
also miss deadlines —
something he did once and hopes to never do again.

“I missed the deadline for my son once to [play]
flag football,” he said. “I never want to see that look on his face again.”

Summer camp? It's not too late

Camp. Take a look at these options.

Still hoping to find a spot for your child to spend their summer days? It's not too late — many New York City camps and classes are still accepting summer registration, whether your child might like a musical theater program or sleeping in a rustic cabin.

Four Corners Creative

Horoscope

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20.

You'll be more alert to opportunities and nuances in the morning than in the afternoon. As you tire, you could start to miss things.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22.

Your methods could be quite imaginative and innovative today. Don't let others shut you down.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22.

If you put too much emphasis on your own interests, expect to meet with resistance. Conversely, when you are considerate, good things can happen.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22.

Be extremely careful of your words when talking to a sensitive friend. What you think is harmless could be construed as offensive.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22.

A project might require more resources than you have at your disposal. Have someone at your side.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21.

Even though you are a cooperative person, today you might not be a team player. When you make things tough on others, you do it to yourself too.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21.

If you want to have a productive day, you must follow a realistic plan. If you don't, all of your time will be spent cleaning up.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20.

There isn't likely to be anything wrong with the way you think, but you might have to compromise.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18.

Some lucky developments are a strong possibility. However, unless you're willing to share the benefits with others, you could end up feeling dismal.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20.

Most of your affairs will turn out favorably, with one exception. You might repeat an error you've made before.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20.

Don't take anything at face value, especially financial matters. There could be hidden benefits as well as hidden pitfalls.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21.

A willingness to cooperate and a desire to do what's best for all will ease many of the day's confrontations.

Jason Kidd retired as a Knick but he's better remembered in the tristate area for his time across the Hudson. / NBAE, GETTY IMAGES

Kidd calls it quits after 19 years in legendary career

NBA. The future Hall of Famer leaves a long legacy in the New York area.

One of the greatest point guards of all time has hung it up for good.

The Knicks announced yesterday that Jason Kidd will retire from the NBA. Kidd spent the last season with the Knicks, but will be remembered most for his time in Phoenix, New Jersey and Dallas.

Kidd, 40, was signed to a three-year deal by the Knicks last off-season, but struggled in the postseason despite a solid regular season backing up Raymond Felton. He averaged 6.3 points, 4.3 rebounds and 3.3 assists per game, but he did not score in his final 10 postseason games.

"My time in professional basketball has been an incredible journey, but one that must come to an end after 19 years," Kidd said.

He became a legendary player after being traded to the Nets in July 2001 for Stephon Marbury. It was there he teamed up with Kenyon Martin, Kerry Kittles and later Richard Jefferson to form one of the best teams of the 2000s. He led the Nets to the NBA Finals in 2002 and 2003, losing both times.

Kidd finally got his only title in 2011 after a return to Dallas.

MARK OSBORNE

Hall of Fame résumé

Kidd is near the top of the leaderboard in innumerable stats. We look at a few:

- 12,091
Kidd is second all time in career assists.
- 1,391
He's sixth in NBA history in games played.
- 2,684
He ranks second all time in steals.
- 50,111
He is third all time in minutes played.
- 107
He is third all time in triple-doubles.

Rapper's delight

Cano contract talks ongoing

While the Yankees have five more years on Alex Rodriguez's contract, they're facing a possible free agent process with Robinson Cano after this year. Cano recently switched agents from Scott Boras to Jay-Z's new group and the Yankees have begun negotiations, contrary to their normal policy of not handling contracts during the season.

"There's nothing new to report, nothing new to report," Steinbrenner said. "If something significant [happens], believe me, you guys will be the first to know."

As for switching agents, Steinbrenner wasn't worried.

"We've had a good relationship with Scott, so we'll see," he said. "Whoever his agent is, that's who we'll be dealing with." METRO

Steinbrenner 'disappointed' in Rodriguez

MLB. The Yankees' owner addressed a wide range of issues related to the team.

Managing general partner Hal Steinbrenner was at Yankee Stadium to announce a new eight-year contract with the Big Ten conference for the Pinstripe Bowl. After fielding a few questions in a televised press conference about the new agreement, Steinbrenner addressed a number of topics about the Yankees.

The biggest was Alex Rodriguez, whose contract came up Sunday night when general manager Brian Cashman told ESPN he likely can't live up the 10-year contract negotiated following the 2007 season.

"It's a big contract to live up to. I didn't see Brian's comments, to be honest you," Steinbrenner said. "Look, we just help he comes back healthy as he did in '09 after the surgery and we hope he contributes in a big way. He's a heck of an athlete — and if the surgery has fixed the problem, you may see good things out of him. We hope so."

"It's a big contract," Steinbrenner added. "We all hope he's going to act like a Yankee and do the

Swisher back at Yankee Stadium

Nick Swisher made his first appearance at Yankee Stadium since Game 2 of the ALCS against Detroit last night. It was on that day he made some critical comments about fan support while the team was struggling.

In the offseason, he signed a four-year deal with the Indians after realizing returning for a fifth season with the Yankees wouldn't happen.

"I knew very early in the offseason that coming back here was not going to be an option. So I had to do my best to step off," Swisher said. "Obviously making that step was harder than most things that I've done in my life. But that's kind of part of the game."

Paid Research Study for men with

Low testosterone?

Dr. Darius A. Paduch, MD, PhD

Contact Office @
212-746-5706

Are you experiencing decline in sexual satisfaction?

- Are you female?
- Are you post-menopausal?
- Have you been experiencing symptoms associated with overactive bladder?

If yes, you may be eligible for free treatment using a novel therapy.

Our study seeks to understand if there are any optimal therapies that improve the efficacy of treatment of overactive bladder and female sexual dysfunction for postmenopausal women.

If you are interested in participating or want to learn more about this study, please contact our clinical research coordinator by phone, (646) 962-9395, or email, ron3001@med.cornell.edu

Are you a woman who served in Iraq or Afghanistan?

Help us study stress and resilience in veterans:

We are seeking women who are OIF/OEF veterans between 20 and 60 years old.
You will be reimbursed for your time.

Legal Notices

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK COUNTY OF QUEENS
Anzhelika Davidova, Plaintiff - against- Artur Yusupov, Defendant.
 This action is brought in the County of QUEENS because said County is the County where the Plaintiff resides.

INDEX No. 16294/1202
Date Summons
 Filed: 3rd day of August, 2012
SUMMONS WITH NOTICE

ACTION FOR A DIVORCE
 To the Defendant:
 YOU ARE HEREBY SUMMONED AND REQUIRED TO RESPOND TO THIS SUMMONS and to the requests for relief made by the Plaintiff by serving a written Notice of Appearance on the Plaintiff's attorney, at the address stated below.

If this Summons with Notice was served upon you within the State of New York by personal delivery, you must respond WITHIN 20 DAYS after service, exclusive of the day of service. If this Summons with Notice was not personally delivered to you within the State of New York you must respond WITHIN 30 DAYS after service is complete in accordance with the requirements of the Civil Practice Law and Rules.

THE NATURE OF THIS ACTION IS TO OBTAIN A JUDGMENT OF DIVORCE, DISSOLVING THE MARRIAGE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT.
 THIS ACTION FOR DIVORCE IS BASED UPON THE FOLLOWING GROUND OR GROUNDS:
 Abandonment of the Plaintiff by the Defendant for a period of more than one (1) year, pursuant to Domestic Relations Law Section 170(2);

THE RELIEF SOUGHT BY THE PLAINTIFF IN THIS ACTION IS A JUDGMENT DIVORCING THE PARTIES AND DISSOLVING THE MARITAL RELATIONSHIP WHICH HAS HERETOFORE EXISTED.
 PLAINTIFF ALSO REQUESTS THAT SUCH JUDGMENT GRANT THE FOLLOWING ITEMS OF ADDITIONAL AND ANCILLARY RELIEF:
 1. Awarding Plaintiff custody of the unemancipated child of the marriage.
 2. Awarding Plaintiff child support, including, but not limited to, a periodic payment, and, where appropriate, a child care allowance, health care allowance, and allowance for private and/or college educational expenses.
 3. Granting each party the right to resume the use of any maiden name or other pre-marriage surname.
 4. Awarding Plaintiff such other and further relief as to the court may seem just and proper, together with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Pursuant to Domestic Relations Law § 255, effective October 9, 2009, notice is hereby given that once the judgment of divorce is signed, a party hereto may or may not be eligible to be covered under the other party's health insurance plan, depending on the terms of the plan.

NOTICE is hereby provided of the automatic orders in this matrimonial action pursuant to Domestic Relations Law § 238(b)(2)(B):
 With respect to matrimonial actions commenced on or after September 1, 2009, the automatic orders shall be binding upon the plaintiff in a matrimonial action immediately upon the filing of the summons, or summons and complaint, and upon the defendant immediately upon the service of the automatic orders with the summons. The automatic orders shall remain in full force and effect during the pendency of the action, unless terminated, modified or amended by further order of the court upon motion of either of the parties or upon written agreement between the parties duly executed and acknowledged.

(1) Neither party shall sell, transfer, encumber, conceal, assign, remove or in any way dispose of, without the consent of the other party in writing, or by order of the court, any property including, but not limited to, real estate, personal property, cash accounts, stocks, mutual funds, bank accounts, cars and boats individually or jointly held by the parties, except in the usual course of business, for customary and usual household expenses or for reasonable attorney's fees in connection with this action.

(2) Neither party shall transfer, encumber, assign, remove, withdraw or in any way dispose of any tax deferred funds, stocks or other assets held in any individual retirement accounts, 401K accounts, profit sharing plans, Keogh accounts, or any other pension or retirement account, and the parties shall further refrain from applying for or requesting the payment of retirement benefits or annuity payments of any kind, without the consent of the other party in writing, or upon further order of the court.

(3) Neither party shall incur unreasonable debts heretofore including, but not limited to further borrowing against any credit line secured by the family residence, further encumbering any assets, or unreasonably using credit cards or cash advances against credit cards, except in the usual course of business or for customary or usual household expenses, or for reasonable attorney's fees in connection with this action.

(4) Neither party shall cause the other party or the children of the marriage to be removed from any existing medical, hospital and dental insurance coverage, and each party shall maintain the existing medical, hospital and dental insurance coverage in full force and effect.

(5) Neither party shall change the beneficiaries of any existing life insurance policies, and each party shall maintain the existing life insurance, automobile insurance, homeowners and renters insurance policies in full force and effect.

IN THE EVENT THAT YOU FAIL TO APPEAR OR ANSWER, JUDGMENT WILL BE TAKEN AGAINST YOU, by default, for the relief demanded in this Summons with Notice.
 Dated: August 3, 2012
